CITY OF TORONTO

NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR SPECIAL LEGISLATION

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that, on behalf of The Corporation of the City of Toronto, application will be made to the Legislative Assembly for the Province of Ontario, for Special Legislation to provide:

1. That the City may, for the benefit of retired employees, as defined in paragraph 46 of section 208 of the Municipal Act, or any class thereof and their spouses and children, provide by contract, hospital, medical, surgical, nursing or dental services or payment thereof; pay the whole or part of the cost of so doing; and pay the whole or part of the cost of the plan of hospital care insurance or of health services provided for under the Health Insurance Act.
2. That where an original document of the City or a local board thereof, after microfilming, is destroyed in accordance with the Evidence Act within the six-year period set out in the Act, the microfilmed version of such document would be admissible as evidence in Court and the section of the Act stating that the Court may refuse to admit such microfilmed document would become inapplicable under such circumstances and to further provide that where the City has by by-law passed under the Municipal Act established schedules of retention periods for documents which must be kept by the City or a local board thereof, and where the City or a local board thereof has by microphotographic film or other process obtained a permanent record of such document, such permanent record is deemed to be the original thereof for the purposes of certain sections of the Municipal Act.

3. That the City may pass by-laws respecting smoking in the workplace, as defined in the proposed legislation, and such by-laws may:
 - (i) require every employer, as defined, to adopt and implement a Smoking Policy for each workplace under his ownership, control or supervision and may provide that any non-smoking employee may object to smoke in the workplace. The by-law would require the employer, where an objection is received, to attempt to reach a reasonable accommodation between the smoking and non-smoking employees and would require the employer to prohibit smoking in the workplace where accommodation satisfactory to all non-smoking employees cannot be reached;
 - (ii) prohibit smoking in a workplace where smoking has been prohibited by the employer as required by the by-law or contrary to an adopted Smoking Policy for that workplace;
 - (iii) prescribe size, location and details of signs which the employer must erect in the workplace;

 - (v) appoint one or more inspectors to enforce such by-law.

The proposed legislation would provide for rights of entry for inspectors and the obtaining of a warrant where an inspector is denied entry or access to or ordered to leave a workplace or obstructed in the enforcement of the by-law without notice to and in the absence of the owner or occupier of the workplace, the employer or the owner or occupier of the building or structure in which the workplace is situated.

The proposed legislation further provides that it and any by-law passed thereunder bind the Crown.

provides for the issuance of permits and identifying markers to the holders of refreshment vehicle licences from the Metropolitan Licensing Commission, subject to payment of a fee and compliance with conditions, including hours of operation and revocation of permits.

ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT ACT

O. Reg. 386/85.

Exemption—Ministry of the Environment—MOE-29.

Made—July 16th, 1985.

Approved—July 17th, 1985.

Filed—July 24th, 1985.

ORDER MADE UNDER THE ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT ACT

EXEMPTION—MINISTRY OF THE
ENVIRONMENT—MOE-29

Having received a request from the Regional Director, Southwestern Region, Ministry of the Environment, that an undertaking, namely:

- A. The activity of excavating PCB, dioxin and furan contaminated materials from the Walker Drain and portions of the Pottery Creek and associated floodplains located within the City of London (the source area).

- B. The transport and delivery of the excavated material mentioned in paragraph A to an interim storage vault(s) located on property to be acquired from Westinghouse Canada Inc. and presently used as part of its operations at 1921 Huron Street, London, Ontario.
- C. The construction of a storage vault(s) for the storage of excavated material mentioned in paragraph A and any other existing or future excavated material from the source area.
- D. The restoration of the area affected by the removal of the PCB, dioxin and furan contaminated material.
- E. The covering with soil of PCB, dioxin and furan contaminated soil in portions of the floodplain associated with Pottersburg Creek.

be exempt from the application of the Act pursuant to section 29; and

Having been advised by the Regional Director, Southwestern Region, Ministry of the Environment, that if the undertaking is subject to the application of the Act, the following injury, damage or interference with the persons and property indicated will occur:

- (a) The current situation has resulted in PCB contamination of fish and thus PCBs may enter the food chain.
- (b) The PCBs, dioxins and furans can wash downstream into the Thames River resulting in further potential for contamination of the food chain.
- (c) The temporary fencing and signing posted under direction of the Medical Officer of Health because of the public concerns over potential exposure to PCBs, dioxins and furans are not totally effective in preventing children gaining access to the area.
- (d) A large portion of the City parkland in the area cannot be used by members of the public because of the fencing and public concerns over the contaminants.

Having weighed such injury, damage or interference against the betterment of the people of the whole or any part of Ontario by the protection, conservation and wise management in Ontario of the environment which would result from the undertaking being subject to the application of the Act;

The undersigned is of the opinion that it is in the public interest to order and orders that the undertaking is exempt from the application of the Act for the following reasons:

- (I) The migration of PCBs, dioxins and furans downstream into the Thames River will be reduced or eliminated. This will result in minimizing or preventing contamination of fish and other organisms.

- (II) The public has been informed of the findings and solutions through a series of public meetings, an open house and meetings of the Pottersburg Public Liaison Committee. Members of the Pottersburg Public Liaison Committee, who were contacted by telephone to inform them of the exemption request, expressed agreement with the seeking of this exemption. The City of London, Ministry of Natural Resources and the Upper Thames Conservation Authority were contacted and indicated agreement with the approach outlined by the Ministry. A Technical Review Committee formed, in part, to review Ministry of Environment's cleanup plans has agreed with the proposed method of cleanup.
- (III) The public and the municipality are anxious that a safe cleanup be carried out as soon as possible to avoid further potential public exposure and the migration of the materials downstream. If the cleanup is to commence this year, a contract must be awarded on or before August 1st so that the vault construction and work at the Walker Drain and Pottersburg Creek can be completed before adverse fall weather conditions begin.
- (IV) The Regional Director, Southwestern Region, under Ontario Regulation 11/82, will insure that instructions are issued which will result in these materials being handled in a safe manner with ultimate disposal being subject to the provisions of Part V of the Environmental Protection Act.

This exemption is subject to the following terms and conditions:

- 1. Potentially affected agencies, organizations and committees including the local municipality will be notified of these activities prior to their commencement. The concerns and requirements of these parties will be taken under advisement in the program.
 - 2. The excavations at the source area and the storage site(s) will be monitored to prevent injury to persons and contamination of the adjacent land or water.
 - 3. A written report, or reports will be issued by the Regional Director, Southwestern Region, Ministry of the Environment, describing the activities and the monitoring program. These will be available for inspection by the public.
- O. Reg. 386/85.

Dated this 16th day of July, 1985.

- (a) the employer establishes that the variation affords adequate protection for a worker or exceeds the factors of accuracy and precision required in the Codes; and
- (b) approval for the variance is obtained from the Director in writing before the measures and procedures as varied are carried out or used.

- (2) An employer may cause the concentration of lead in the blood of a worker to be determined by means other than in accordance with the Code mentioned in subsection 11(3) without complying with subsection (1).

- 15. This Regulation comes into force ninety days after the day it is filed with the Registrar of Regulations.

LEAD IN BLOOD

DETERMINATION OF LEAD (Pb) IN BLOOD1. Principle of Method

- (1) Whole blood samples are collected in lead-free containers with anti-coagulant of choice and digested with nitric acid and hydrogen peroxide to destroy the organic matrix.
- (2) The lead-containing residue is dissolved in dilute nitric acid.
- (3) The lead solutions together with appropriate standards are aspirated into the oxidizing air-acetylene flame of an atomic absorption spectrophotometer (AAS) using a hollow cathode lamp for lead.

2. Apparatus

- (1) An AAS equipped with an air-acetylene burner head.
 - (a) Lead hollow cathode lamp.
 - (b) Oxidant: compressed air.
 - (c) Fuel: acetylene.
 - (d) Pressure-reducing valves, a 2-gauge, 2-stage pressure-reducing valve and appropriate hose connections are needed for each compressed gas tank used.
- (2) Adjustable, thermostatically-controlled hot-plate (to 230°C).
- (3) Glassware, borosilicate.
 - (a) 150 mL Griffin beakers with watchglass covers.
 - (b) Pipettes, automatic, 10 mL (calibration to an accuracy of $\pm 1\%$).

- (c) Pipettes, serological, disposable (calibrated to an accuracy of $\pm 2\%$).

3. Reagents

All reagents must be ACS Reagent Grade or better.

- (1) Distilled or deionized water.
- (2) Concentrated nitric acid.
- (3) Hydrogen peroxide 30%.
- (4) Dilute nitric acid (1 mL of concentrated nitric acid diluted to 100 mL with distilled or deionized water).
- (5) Aqueous stock standard solution containing 1,000 μg Pb/mL.

4. Procedure

- (1) Cleaning of equipment:
 - (a) Before use, all new glassware must be cleaned to remove any residual grease or chemicals.
 - (b) Glassware must be cleaned by soaking in 20% v/v nitric acid for at least 6 hours, and then be rinsed thoroughly with tap water and distilled or deionized water, in that order, and then dried.
- (2) Analysis of sample:
 - (a) Measure 10 mL of mixed blood sample, using a 10 mL disposable pipette, and transfer to a clean 150 mL Griffin beaker.
 - (b) Rinse the pipette thoroughly with distilled or deionized water and collect the washings in the 150 mL Griffin beaker.

- (c) Set the hot-plate to 150°C.
- (d) Add 10 mL of concentrated nitric acid from an automatic pipette. Cover with a watchglass and digest on the hot-plate for three hours.
- (e) Remove the watchglass, adjust the hot-plate temperature to 120-130°C, and evaporate until the digest is just dry.
- (f) Add a further 10 mL of concentrated nitric acid from an automatic pipette. Cover the beaker with the previously used watchglass and digest on the hot-plate at 120-130°C overnight.
- (g) Remove the watchglass and evaporate until the digest is just dry.

Note: Check these samples frequently. Samples which bake on the hot-plate result in a dusty residue which is very difficult to dissolve in subsequent steps.

- (h) Add 10 mL of hydrogen peroxide from an automatic pipette. Cover the beaker with the previously used watchglass and digest on the hot-plate at 130°C for two hours.

Note: Watch for violent bubbling when the hydrogen peroxide begins to react. It is sometimes necessary to remove the beaker from the hot-plate until the reaction subsides.

- (i) Remove the watchglass and evaporate until the digest is just dry.

Note: Check these samples frequently. Samples which bake on the hot-plate result in a dusty residue which is very difficult to dissolve in subsequent steps.

- (j) Add 10 mL of dilute nitric acid from a disposable pipette. Cover the beaker with the previously used watchglass and swirl gently to dissolve the residue.
- (k) After calibration of the AAS (see section 5) aspirate the solutions and record the absorbance.
- (l) If a sample gives results greater than 10 µg/mL it must be suitably diluted with nitric acid and re-read.
- (m) Appropriate reagent blanks must be analyzed in accordance with the total procedure.

5. Calibration and Standards

- (1) AAS operating parameters:
 - (a) Wavelength - 217.0 nm.
 - (b) Slit width - 0.7 nm.
 - (c) Light source - a lead hollow cathode lamp.
 - (d) Flame type - an oxidizing air-acetylene flame.
- (2) For the operating parameters quoted in subsection (1), the working range for lead is linear up to concentrations of 10 µg/mL.

Prepare fresh, each day, three working standards of 0.5, 1.0 and 3.0 µg Pb/mL in dilute nitric acid.

- (3) Aspirate each of the standard solutions and record the absorbance of each.
- (4) Prepare a calibration curve by plotting, on linear graph paper, the absorbance versus the concentration of each standard in µg Pb/mL.

Note: Many modern AAS have the capability of being calibrated to read directly in concentration. Under these conditions the preparation and use of a calibration graph of absorbance versus concentration becomes unnecessary.

6. Calculations

- (1) Read the concentration in µg Pb/mL, corresponding to the total absorbance from the standard curve. Multiply by 10 to obtain the total amount of lead present in the sample.
- (2) Corrections for the blank must be made for each sample.
- (3) The concentration of the analyte in the blood sample must be expressed in µg/dL.

$$\mu\text{g/dL} = \text{corrected amount of lead in the sample in } \mu\text{g} \times 10.$$

7. Sensitivity

A standard containing 1 µg Pb/mL should give an absorbance reading of 0.020.

8. Detection Limit

The detection limit was found to be 0.05 µg Pb/mL.

9. Precision

Standard solution being measured µg Pb/mL	Relative standard deviation percentage
0.05	45.7
0.10	26.7
0.20	10.6
0.40	5.8
0.60	3.9
0.80	2.3
1.00	2.4
5.00	0.8
10.00	0.4

Note: The data listed in sections 7 to 9 were obtained on a Perkin-Elmer model 603 AAS using a lead hollow cathode lamp and a deuterium arc background. The spectrophotometer was programmed to read directly in concentration.

Determination of Lead (Pb) in Blood
By A Modified Delves Cup Atomic Absorption
Procedure

1. Principle of Method

- (1) Whole blood samples are collected into lead-free containers treated with an anticoagulant of choice.
- (2) A known amount of blood is pipetted into a nickel cup and dried on a hot-plate.
- (3) The dried blood in the nickel cup is inserted into the oxidizing air-acetylene flame of an atomic absorption spectrophotometer (AAS) and the resultant signal is proportional to the amount of lead present in the sample.

2. Apparatus

- (1) An AAS equipped with a triple slot air-acetylene burner head, a suitable recorder and a deuterium arc background corrector:

- (a) Lead hollow cathode lamp.
- (b) Oxidant: compressed air.
- (c) Fuel: acetylene.
- (d) Pressure-reducing valves, a 2-gauge, 2-stage pressure reducing valve and appropriate hose connections are needed for each compressed gas tank used.
- (e) The Delves sampling accessory.

Note: Instructions for setting up and adjusting the Delves accessory are supplied by the manufacturer.

- (2) Adjustable, thermostatically-controlled hot-plate (to 250°C).
- (3) Heat control plate.
- (4) Tweezers.
- (5) Dessicator.
- (6) An automatic pipette capable of delivering 10 µL and disposable polypropylene tips.
- (7) Vortex mixer.
- (8) Rotary mixer.

3. Reagents

All reagents must be ACS grade or better.

- (1) Deionized water.
- (2) Concentrated nitric acid.

- (3) Dilute nitric acid: dilute 1 mL of concentrated nitric acid to 100 mL with deionized water.

- (4) Aqueous stock standard solution 1,000 µg Pb/mL.

- (5) Standard lead solution: 10 µg Pb/mL.

Dilute 5 mL of stock standard lead solution to 500 mL with dilute nitric acid. This solution can be stored for five days at 4°C.

4. Procedure

- (1) The blood sample is thoroughly mixed by hand and then by using a Vortex mixer. This homogenizes the blood sample and helps to break up any small blood clots that may have formed. Finally, mix on a rotary mixer for approximately five minutes to remove any air bubbles that may have formed.
- (2) Pipette 10 µL of blood and transfer it quantitatively to a nickel Delves cup. The cup must be conditioned in the flame before use until no lead signal is observed.

Note: The sensitivity of each new batch of cups must be checked by first conditioning them and then comparing the signal obtained when using them to run a known standard. Cups with approximately the same sensitivity are selected and used equally in future determinations; sensitivity gradually decreases with use. A batch of cups is generally usable for 30-40 determinations.

- (3) Dry the sample on the hot-plate, set at 140°C, for approximately two minutes.
- (4) Remove from the hot-plate and allow to cool for a few minutes.

- (5) After calibration of the AAS (see section 5) introduce the sampling cup into the flame and measure the peak height shown by the recorder. All samples should be run in duplicate.

Note: The recorder trace will show a peak representing smoke and combustion products from the sample before the lead absorption peak.

5. Calibration

- (1) AAS operating parameters:

- (a) Wavelength - 217.0 nm.
- (b) Slit width - 0.7 nm.
- (c) Light source - a lead hollow cathode lamp.
- (d) Flame - an oxidizing air-acetylene flame.

Note: The 283.3 nm line may also be used. This is a less sensitive line and more susceptible to non-specific molecular radiation but it does give a wider range for a plot of concentration against recorder peak height.

- (2) Prepare working standard lead solutions of 0.2, 0.4 and 0.8 $\mu\text{g Pb/mL}$ by diluting 2.0, 4.0 and 8.0 mL of standard lead solution to 100 mL with deionized water.
- (3) Pipette 10 μL of homogenized blood, known to be very low in lead content, into four previously conditioned nickel Delves cups.
- (4) Spike the first three cups with 10 μL of 0.2, 0.4 and 0.8 $\mu\text{g Pb/mL}$ standard lead solution respectively. The fourth cup is not spiked.

- (5) Dry the standards on a hot-plate set at 140°C , for two minutes.
- (6) Remove the cups from the hot-plate and allow to cool.
- (7) Introduce the spiked and unspiked cups successively into the flame and note the recorder peak heights.
- (8) Prepare a calibration curve by plotting, on linear graph paper, the recorder peak height versus concentration for each standard, in $\mu\text{g Pb/mL}$, added.
- (9) Graphically transpose the line so that the new line is parallel to the original one but passes through the original.
- (10) Determine the slope of the transposed line.
- (11) For the operating parameters quoted in section 5(1), the linearity of peak height versus concentration of Pb added is valid up to at least 80 $\mu\text{g Pb/mL}$.

Notes: 1. The previously described calibration procedure is based upon "The Method of Additions". This is necessary because all blood contains some lead.

2. The direct use of aqueous standards results in non-linear response and poor reproducibility.

6. Calculations

- (1) The method of additions is time consuming. It is convenient when analyzing large numbers of blood samples for lead content, to run a calibration series using the method of additions, transpose the experimental line so that it passes through zero and use the slope of this line in determining unknown blood samples. This technique assumes that the blood used in the calibration series has a similar matrix to that of the unknown samples.

$$(2) \quad X = \frac{Y}{M} \times 100$$

X = Concentration of sample in $\mu\text{g Pb}/100 \text{ mL}$.

Y = Recorder peak height of sample (see section 4(5)).

M = Slope of calibration curve (see section 5(10)).

Note: Blood values for lead are frequently expressed in $\mu\text{g}/100 \text{ mL}$. The recommended convention (SI system) is $\mu\text{mol/L}$ ($10 \mu\text{g Pb}/100 \text{ mL} = 0.483 \mu\text{mol/L}$).

7. Detection Limit

The detection limit was found to be $0.05 \mu\text{g/mL}$ ($5.0 \mu\text{g}/100 \text{ mL}$).

8. Precision

Standard solution being measured $\mu\text{g}/100 \text{ mL}$	Relative standard deviation percentage
19.0	6.9
40.0	6.3
79.0	6.6

Note: The data listed in sections 7 and 8 were obtained on a Perkin-Elmer model 603 AAS fitted with a Delves cup attachment and a Perkin-Elmer model 56 Recorder.

CODE FOR MEDICAL EXAMINATIONS AND CLINICAL TESTS FOR LEAD ON CONSTRUCTION PROJECTS

MINISTRY OF LABOUR
OCCUPATIONAL HEALTH AND SAFETY DIVISION

August 12, 1985

MEDICAL EXAMINATIONS AND CLINICAL TESTS1. Purpose

The objective of a medical examination and clinical tests is to protect the health of workers by:

- (a) evaluating the absorption of lead in workers;
- (b) enabling remedial action to be taken when necessary; and
- (c) providing health education.

2. Medical Examinations

The examination must include a medical and occupational history including:

- (a) personal habits (smoking and hygiene);
- (b) history of frequency and duration of exposure to lead (both occupational and non-occupational) since previous examination, if any; and
- (c) enquiry for signs and symptoms that may be an early indication of lead intoxication, e.g., abdominal pain, constipation, vomiting, asthenia, parasthenia, and psychological change.

3. Clinical Tests

Clinical tests aid in the assessment of a worker's fitness for and continued exposure to lead.

(1) Lead in Blood

Blood lead concentration is a good indicator of the lead absorption of an individual worker (except when exposure has been to tetramethyl lead when lead in urine is the appropriate indicator). It may not indicate the total body burden of lead.

(2) Action Levels

Blood lead concentration is expressed in $\mu\text{mol/L}$. If a concentration greater than $2.9 \mu\text{mol/L}$ (0.60 mg/L) of blood is found, the examining physician should advise the employer and the worker that work practices and personal hygiene should be reviewed.

When the blood lead concentration of a worker is found to exceed $3.4 \mu\text{mol/L}$ (0.70 mg/L), a further test must be undertaken immediately and if the result is confirmed, the worker must be removed from lead exposure, although symptoms of lead intoxication are unlikely to be apparent at this level. If symptoms or signs of lead intoxication are present, the worker must be removed from lead exposure regardless of blood lead level.

Return to work may be permitted when the level of blood reaches $2.4 \mu\text{mol/L}$ (0.50 mg/L) or less. In order to safeguard a developing fetus, a woman capable of bearing children must be removed from lead exposure when the blood lead concentration is found to exceed $1.9 \mu\text{mol/L}$ (0.40 mg/L).

(3) Sample Collection

Collect 5 mL of blood in a lead-free tube with anticoagulant. Whole blood is assayed (see Code for Determining Lead in Blood).

4. Health Education

The physician must advise the worker of the hazards of lead exposure, the importance of personal hygiene and the danger of eating, drinking, smoking or chewing in lead exposure areas.

Women workers must be advised of the hazards of lead exposure to the fetus and should be encouraged to notify a physician as soon as possible if they become pregnant.

5. Physician Reporting Protocol

The physician must provide a report of the medical examination and clinical tests of a worker with an interpretation of the findings to the worker and to the worker's personal physician, if any, in accordance with section 12 of the Regulation respecting Lead on Construction Projects.

When the physician is informed that a worker is pregnant, the physician must advise the worker and the employer whether the worker should be removed from further exposure to lead.

The physician must advise the employer and the Chief Physician of the Occupational Health Medical Service, Ministry of Labour, as to whether the worker is fit with limitations or unfit, without disclosing to the employer the results of the examination or tests in accordance with section 13 of the Regulation respecting Lead on Construction Projects.

The advice given by the physician is a professional judgement based on the results of medical examinations and clinical tests.

In order to protect the health of workers and others at a work site, the physician should alert the employer and the local occupational medical consultant of the Ministry of Labour of a suspected problem so that early investigation of the circumstances may take place with implementation of any necessary controls.

6. Chelating Agents

Treatment of workers with chelating agents because of an increase in blood lead or symptoms of lead intoxication, is rarely necessary.

These agents must only be used under the direct supervision of a physician, knowledgeable in their use, and never as a general control measure in lead exposure.

Occupational Health and Safety Act

September 14, 1985

MINISTRY OF LABOUR

NOTICE OF PROPOSED REGULATION

RESPECTING CADMIUM

On Saturday, November 13, 1982, the Ministry published in The Ontario Gazette a Notice of Intention to designate cadmium under section 22(a) of the Occupational Health and Safety Act, R.S.O. 1980, c. 321 (the Act). The notice called for briefs or submissions in relation to the designation.

Notice is hereby given of the following proposed regulation relating to the designation of cadmium.

The government is committed to an open and consultative process for the development of designated substance regulations on the basis that this is more likely to result in quality regulations which are more understandable and acceptable to the affected parties. In order to ensure the most expeditious development of this regulation, dates have been specified in the next paragraph when certain steps in the process are expected to take place. These dates will be adhered to.

All comments that are received in response to this notice will be analyzed and any proposed amendments arising from these comments will be presented at a public meeting to take place not later than March, 1986 for review and further comment. The comments will be analyzed and the regulation may be further revised. It is intended that the regulation will be transmitted to the Advisory Council on Occupational Health and Occupational Safety by July, 1986.

The Ministry welcomes comments on all aspects of the proposed regulation. It wishes to draw attention to a particularly controversial issue. In December 1984, the Ministry distributed to interested parties, a document entitled "Health Effects of Cadmium and Its Inorganic Compounds". Following a review of comments received, the document was revised and is available for review. The health effects document and the comments received suggest that there may be inadequate evidence to consider cadmium as a human carcinogen and require employers to reduce worker exposure to the lowest practical level in addition to meeting the proposed exposure limit. In this regard the Ministry would welcome comments on the following questions:

- . Is there evidence concerning the carcinogenicity of cadmium which the Ministry did not consider in its health effects document?
- . Does the existing evidence support the addition to section four of the proposed regulation of precautionary requirement for employers to reduce exposures to the lowest practical level?

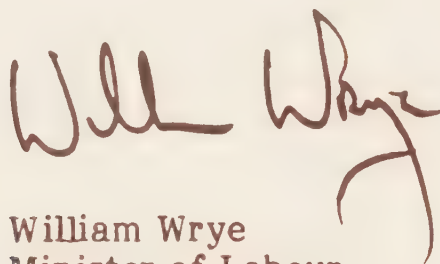

Background information is available for review during business hours in the Ministry of Labour library at 400 University Avenue, 10th Floor, Toronto, Ontario, and district offices of the Ministry. If these hours are not convenient, or to request a copy of the Ministry's health effects document, please contact Mr. John Wilson at the number below.

Comments on the proposed regulation or any particular sections therein must be submitted by December 13, 1985 to:

Designated Substances Project
Program Development Unit
Ministry of Labour, 9th Floor
400 University Avenue
Toronto, Ontario
M7A 1T7

Comments received will be made available for public examination after the close of the public comment period.

For further information contact Mr. John Wilson, Toronto (416) 965-8710.

1. The average concentrations of cadmium to which a worker is exposed shall be determined from analyses of air samples taken as being representative of the exposure of the worker to cadmium during work operations as set out in the Code mentioned in section 11.
2. The results of the analyses are the concentrations of cadmium expressed as mg cadmium per m³ of air.

3. The concentrations shall be multiplied by the time in hours to which the worker is taken to be exposed to such concentrations.

4. The weekly exposure shall be calculated as follows:

$C_1T_1 + C_2T_2 + \dots + C_nT_n =$ cumulative weekly exposure, where C_1 is the concentration found in an air sample and T_1 is the total time in hours to which the worker is taken to be exposed to concentration C_1 in a week.

5. The time-weighted average exposure shall be calculated by dividing the cumulative weekly exposure by 40.

OCCUPATIONAL HEALTH AND SAFETY DIVISION

August 29, 1985

DETERMINATION OF CADMIUM (Cd) IN URINE1. Principle of Method

- (1) Urine samples are acidified to below pH 2 at the laboratory.
- (2) The acidified urine is diluted as required with 0.5% nitric acid.
- (3) A microvolume of the diluted sample is manually injected into the graphite furnace of an atomic absorption spectrophotometer. The temperature program of the furnace is initiated and the resultant cadmium signal is registered on the instrument recorder.
- (4) The concentration of cadmium in the sample is determined from a matrix-matched calibration curve.

2. Apparatus

- (1) An atomic absorption spectrophotometer (AAS) equipped with the following:
 - (a) Cadmium hollow cathode lamp.
 - (b) Deuterium arc background lamp.
 - (c) Graphite furnace.
 - (d) Power supply-controller for the graphite furnace.
 - (e) Temperature ramp programmer.
 - (f) Argon tank and pressure regulator.
 - (g) Strip-chart recorder.
- (2) Vortex mixer.
- (3) High-speed microcentrifuge.
- (4) Polyethylene sample cups, with attached polyethylene stoppers, 1.5 mL capacity.
- (5) Automatic pipettes of appropriate volumes and disposable polypropylene tips.

- (6) Borosilicate volumetric flasks, 10 mL and 100 mL capacity, equipped with borosilicate stoppers.

- (5) Intermediate cadmium standard, solution A: 100 $\mu\text{mol Cd/L}$.
Dilute 1 mL of the stock cadmium standard solution to 100 mL with 0.5% nitric acid.
- (6) Intermediate cadmium standard, solution B: 1 $\mu\text{mol Cd/L}$.
Dilute 1 mL of intermediate cadmium standard solution A to 100 mL with 0.5% nitric acid. Solution B should be prepared daily.
- (7) Working cadmium standard solutions prepared to contain 0, 0.05, 0.10 and 0.15 $\mu\text{mol/L}$.
Pipette 0, 0.5, 1.0 and 1.5 mL of intermediate cadmium standard solution B into 10 mL volumetric flasks and adjust to volume with 0.5% nitric acid. These solutions shall be prepared daily.

(8) Xylene.

(9) Prepurified argon.

4. Procedure

(1) Cleaning of equipment:

(a) New polyethylene sample cups are soaked for several hours in 10% nitric acid and then thoroughly rinsed with deionized water. The cups are allowed to dry in air and stored in clean polyethylene containers.

(b) Volumetric flasks are rinsed with 10% nitric acid, followed by several rinses with deionized water.

(c) Cleaning of the graphite furnace assembly is carried out in accordance with the manufacturer's instructions.

(2) Pre-treatment of samples.

Urine specimens are acidified to below pH 2 by the addition of 1 mL concentrated nitric acid per 100 mL of urine. The sample bottles with caps loosened are left at room temperature overnight.

(3) Analysis of samples:

(a) Pipette 600 μ L of 0.5% nitric acid into a polyethylene sample cup.

(b) Transfer 200 μ L of acidified well-shaken urine from the sample bottle to the cup.

(c) Prepare a reagent blank solution substituting urine with an equal volume of deionized water.

(d) Seal the cup and vigorously shake the content for 30 seconds using a Vortex mixer.

(e) Centrifuge the mixture, if necessary, for 1-2 minutes.

(f) Prepare the instrument for operation and calibration (see section 5).

(g) Using an automatic pipette, inject 10 μ L of the sample solution into the graphite furnace of the instrument.

Note: Rinsing the pipette tip with xylene before use ensures complete delivery of the sample volume.

(h) Initiate the temperature program of the furnace and note the peak height shown by the recorder.

(i) Following the outlined procedure, measure the response due to the reagent blank.

5. Calibration

- (a) Drying - 15 sec ramp to 110°C and hold for 10 sec.
- (b) Charring - 30 sec ramp to 350°C and hold for 20 sec.
- (c) Atomization - 5 sec at 1500°C.
- (d) Cleaning - 5 sec at 2650°C.

- (f) Purge gas - argon.
- (g) Gas flow rate - 40 cm³/min.
- (h) Gas flow mode - interrupted for 3 sec.
- (i) Peak recording - automatic.

(3) Pipette 400 µL of 0.5% nitric acid into four polyethylene sample cups.

(4) Add, in sequence, 200 µL of working cadmium standard solutions containing 0, 0.05, 0.10 and 0.15 µmol Cd/L.

(5) Transfer 200 µL of acidified, well-shaken urine, known to be low in cadmium content, to the sample cups.

(6) Seal the cups and swirl the contents for 30 seconds using a Vortex mixer.

(7) Centrifuge the mixtures, if necessary, for 1-2 minutes.

(8) Inject 10 µL of the prepared standard solutions successively into the graphite furnace.

(9) Following each injection, initiate the temperature program of the furnace and note the recorder peak height.

(10) Tabulate the average recorded peak heights versus the corresponding concentrations of added standards.

(11) Using the data obtained, calculate the slope of the calibration curve.

Note: In this method, matrix-matched standards are used for calibration. However, the composition of urine samples can vary widely, which frequently results in different responses during measurements. Consequently, samples showing the presence of cadmium at concentrations above 0.05 µmol/L should be re-analyzed, using at least one individual standard addition with that urine specimen.

6. Calculation

(1) Correct the recorder peak height of each sample for the corresponding blank.

(2) Calculate the concentration of cadmium in urine using the formula:

$$X = \frac{Y_{\text{corr}}}{M}$$

where X = concentration of cadmium in urine in µmol/L

Y_{corr} = recorder peak height of sample corrected for the blank

M = slope of calibration curve

(3) Express the cadmium concentration relative to the creatinine content

$$A = \frac{X}{C} \times 1000$$

where A = µmol cadmium/mol creatinine

C = concentration of creatinine in mmol/L

7. Detection Limit

The detection limit is found to be 0.01 µmol Cd/L.

8. Working Range

The working range of the method extends from the detection limit to approximately 0.15 µmol Cd/L urine. In case the concentration of cadmium in urine exceeds 0.15 µmol/L the dilution factor is increased. Higher than 20-fold dilutions are not recommended.

9. Precision

Urine specimen being measured (µmol Cd/L)	Relative standard deviation (%) (n = 10)
0.052	5.2
0.093	2.9
0.11	4.0
0.13	3.6

10. Recovery Study

Concentration of Cadmium in the Spiked Urine (µmol/L)	Average Concentration of Cadmium Recovered (µmol/L)	% Recovery	% Relative Standard Deviation (n = 10)
0.044	0.047	107	2.1
0.089	0.093	104	1.1
0.133	0.133	100	2.1

Note: The data listed in sections 7 to 10 were obtained using a Perkin-Elmer atomic absorption spectrophotometer and a model HGA-2200 graphite furnace. The equipment listed above is specified for clarification purposes only and should not be taken as an endorsement by the Ministry.

ANALYTICAL PROCEDURES USED BY THE MINISTRY WILL BE REVIEWED PERIODICALLY AND, IF NECESSARY, REVISED.

AIRBORNE CADMIUM

AIR SAMPLING METHOD FOR CADMIUM AND ITS COMPOUNDS

1. Principle of the Sampling Method

Air, possibly containing cadmium and/or its compounds, is drawn at a specified fixed flow rate for a known duration through a mixed cellulose ester filter of specified pore size and diameter held in a worker's breathing zone by a plastic closed-face filter holder. The particulate matter collected on the sample filter is then analyzed in a laboratory for the total quantity of cadmium present. In addition to personal sampling, an area sample may be collected by this method by placing a sampling train on a suitable support at a strategically selected location with the inlet port facing downward.

2. Equipment

The sampling train used to obtain an air sample of cadmium particulate is to include the following components, and satisfy the criteria suggested:

(1) A battery operated portable pump which:

- (a) is capable of delivering, for 6-8 hours, not less than 2 litres of air per minute with a filter in the sampling train. The maximum deviation from the prescribed flow rate is not to exceed $\pm 5\%$ and it is suggested that the pump be equipped with a pulsation damper;
- (b) is intrinsically safe, i.e. certified by an accepted agency as safe for use in potentially explosive atmospheres;
- (c) includes a calibrated flow meter or a mechanism for maintaining a constant flow rate;

(d) has an on-off switch and flow rate control or adjustment mechanism which are as tamper-proof as possible.

(2) Mixed cellulose ester filters of appropriate size, preferably 37 millimetre (mm) in diameter and 0.8 micrometre in pore size.

(3) Filter support pads of the same size as the mixed cellulose ester filters used, preferably 37 mm in diameter.

(4) A closed-face filter holder of the same size as the mixed cellulose ester filters and the filter support pads used, preferably 37 mm in inner diameter and with an adapter which provides a leak-proof fit for connecting flexible tubing.

(5) A sufficient length of flexible tubing with appropriate wall thickness to prevent its collapsing when air is drawn through and with appropriate inner diameter which will provide a leak-proof connection to the filter holder adapter and to the inlet port adapter of the portable pump.

(6) A thermometer, accurate to $\pm 1^{\circ}\text{C}$, for ambient air temperature measurement if required.

(7) A barometer, accurate to ± 5 mm Hg (± 0.67 kPa), for measuring atmospheric pressure if required.

3. Sampling Procedure

(1) Preparation of pumps:

- (a) The pump battery pack shall be fully charged according to the manufacturer's instructions before use. After a pump, with the fully-charged battery pack, has been operated for a duration as recommended by the manufacturer, another fully-charged battery pack shall be substituted for the used one if continued operation of the same pump on the same day is intended.

- (b) Flow meters, or constant flow devices on the pumps shall be calibrated at 2.0 litres per minute with the filter/filter holder assembly in line by using a primary standard, such as a bubble meter, and the recommended procedure in the manufacturer's instructions for using such primary standard apparatus, after:

- (i) not more than 40 hours of operation;
- (ii) receiving unusually harsh or potentially damaging treatment;
- (iii) being disassembled for maintenance.

(2) Preparation of filter holders:

- (a) Assemble the filter holders in a clean environment prior to initiation of sampling.
- (b) Each filter holder shall be prepared by the following procedure:
 - (i) use only a clean filter holder and handle the filter support pad and filter with tweezers. Place a filter support pad and a mixed cellulose ester filter in the base of a filter holder;
 - (ii) plug the inlet and outlet ports;

- (iii) ensure that the joints of the filter holder are sealed with non-porous, shrinkable cellulose band or tape.

(3) Sampling:

- (a) Assemble the sampling train by fixing one end of the flexible tubing to the inlet port of the pump and the other end with the adapter to the outlet port of the filter holder.
- (b) Check for air leaks in the sampling train by turning on the pump and inserting a clean plastic plug into the inlet port of the filter holder. The air flow indicator on a pump with a flow meter should drop to the zero flow position and oscillate slightly. If this does not occur, find and either repair the leak if possible, or replace the faulty component.
- (c) Label the filter holder with an appropriate sample number.
- (d) Attach the pump preferably to the worker's belt or place it in a pocket; place the flexible tubing over the shoulder and clip the filter holder to the clothing as near as possible to the breathing zone, with the inlet port facing downward. Ensure that the sampling train does not interfere with the worker's movements.
- (e) Check again that the sampling train is properly assembled, remove the plastic plug from the inlet port of the filter holder and switch on the pump. Allow the flow rate to stabilize for a short duration then adjust the rate to the pre-calibrated mark of 2.0 litres per minute, if the pump has a flow meter. Pumps with constant flow devices shall not be reset after the flow rate control mechanism has been calibrated to deliver air at this rate. A calibrated external flow meter may be used to check the air flow rate.

- (f) Note the following information for each sample:

- (i) date of sampling;
- (ii) company name;
- (iii) model and serial number of the sampling pump;
- (iv) calibration date of the sampling pump;
- (v) name of worker;
- (vi) job title;
- (vii) work or operation performed;
- (viii) filter holder or sample number;
- (ix) air flow rate;
- (x) time of initiation of sampling.

- (g) Ensure that for any sampling performed during any survey, two control or blank filters are prepared in the same manner as the sample filters. These blank filters shall remain in sealed filter holders during the survey (i.e. no air is to be drawn through these filters).

- (h) Sampling shall be carried out for a full workshift or operation during which the worker is exposed to cadmium. Sequential air samples may be taken as opposed to single air samples during a workshift or operation. Where it is necessary to obtain a better estimate of the worker's time-weighted average exposure, air sampling should be conducted for a sufficient number of workshifts or days in a work week.

- (i) Determination of the maximum cadmium concentration shall be determined by following the procedure specified above with the following exceptions:

- (i) a sufficient number of air samples should be taken during the time periods when such maximum concentration is anticipated from a knowledge of the work process, work operation, work cycle or work practices;
- (ii) each air sample should be taken for a duration of 15 minutes.

- (j) During the sampling interval, the sampling train shall be checked periodically to ensure that it is functioning properly. The air flow rate shall not be re-adjusted after the initial flow rate is set. If the flow rate changes significantly, terminate sampling and take another sample.

- (k) The ambient air temperature and pressure in the sampling area, if required, shall be recorded at least once.

- (l) To terminate sampling, perform the following sequence of steps:

- (i) check the air flow rate just prior to termination of air sampling;
- (ii) record the time of termination of sampling;

- (iii) switch off the pump and carefully remove the sampling train from the worker;
 - (iv) remove the filter holder and insert clean plastic plugs into the inlet and outlet ports;
 - (v) ship the filter and filter holder together to a laboratory and request analysis of the filter for total cadmium.
- (m) A sufficient number of area samples should be taken at selected work locations where necessary.

- (2) The concentration of total cadmium in an air sample is calculated by using the following equation:

$$C = \frac{A}{F \times t}$$

where C = concentration of total cadmium in mg/m^3

A = corrected amount of total cadmium on the sample filter in μg

F = air flow rate in litres per minute

t = sampling duration in minutes.

4. Calculation of Results

- (1) Corrections for the field blank are made for each sample provided that the amount of total cadmium in every sample filter is greater than the amount of total cadmium in each field blank filter.

THE DETERMINATION OF TOTAL CADMIUM (Cd)
ON AIR SAMPLING FILTERS

1. Principle of Method

- (1) Air is drawn at a fixed flow rate for a known duration through a cellulose membrane filter to collect the particulate matter.
- (2) Filters are digested using aqua-regia to destroy organic matter and the cadmium-containing residue is dissolved in dilute nitric acid.
- (3) The cadmium solutions and appropriate standards are aspirated into the oxidizing air-acetylene flame of an atomic absorption spectrophotometer using a hollow cathode lamp for cadmium.

2. Apparatus

- (1) An air sampling device incorporating a mixed cellulose ester membrane filter.
- (2) An atomic absorption spectrophotometer (AAS) equipped with an air-acetylene burner head:
 - (a) Cadmium hollow cathode lamp;
 - (b) Oxidant: compressed air;
 - (c) Fuel: acetylene;
 - (d) Pressure-reducing valves: a 2-gauge, 2-stage pressure-reducing valve and appropriate hose connections are needed for each tank of compressed gas used.
- (3) Adjustable, thermostatically-controlled hot plate (to 250°C).
- (4) Glassware, borosilicate:
 - (a) 100 mL Griffin beakers with watchglass covers;

- (b) Pipettes, automatic, 10 mL (calibrated to an accuracy of $\pm 1\%$).

3. Reagents

All reagents used should be ACS reagent grade or better.

- (1) Distilled or deionized water.
- (2) Concentrated nitric acid.
- (3) Concentrated hydrochloric acid.
- (4) Aqua-regia. Mix 3 volumes of concentrated hydrochloric acid with 1 volume of concentrated nitric acid.
- (5) Dilute nitric acid.
Dilute 1 mL of concentrated nitric acid to 100 mL with distilled or deionized water.
- (6) Aqueous stock standard solution containing 1000 $\mu\text{g Cd/mL}$. Standard solutions are commercially available.

4. Procedure

- (1) Cleaning of equipment:
 - (a) Before use, all new glassware is soaked in detergent solution.
 - (b) Glassware is cleaned by soaking in an approximately one in five dilution of concentrated nitric acid in water for at least 6 hours, and then is rinsed thoroughly with tap water and deionized water, in that order, and then dried.

(2) Analysis of sample:

- (a) Transfer each sample filter to a clean 100 mL Griffin beaker.
- (b) Add 10 mL of aqua-regia from an automatic pipette. Cover with a watchglass and digest just below boiling on the hot plate for three hours.
- (c) Remove the watchglass and evaporate until the digest is just dry.
- (d) Add 20 mL of dilute nitric acid from an automatic pipette. Cover the beaker with the previously used watchglass and swirl gently to dissolve the residue.
- (e) After calibration of the AAS (see section 5) aspirate the solutions and record the absorbance.
- (f) If a sample gives results greater than 2 µg/mL it should be suitably diluted in dilute nitric acid and re-read.
- (g) Appropriate filter blanks shall be analyzed in accordance with the total procedure.

5. Calibration and Standards

(1) AAS operating parameters:

- (a) Wavelength - 228.8 nm;
- (b) Slit width - 0.7 nm;
- (c) Light source - a cadmium hollow cathode lamp;
- (d) Flame type - an oxidizing air-acetylene flame.

- (2) For the operating parameters quoted in subsection (1), the working range for cadmium is linear up to a concentration of 2 µg/mL.

- (3) Prepare fresh, each day, 3 working standards of 0.5, 1.0 and 2.0 µg Cd/mL in dilute nitric acid.

- (4) Aspirate each of the standard solutions and record the absorbance of each.

- (5) Prepare a calibration curve by plotting, on linear graph paper, the absorbance versus the concentration of each standard in µg Cd/mL.

Note: Many modern' AAS's have the capability of being calibrated to read directly in concentration. Under these conditions the preparation and use of a calibration graph of absorbance versus concentration becomes unnecessary.

6. Calculations

- (1) Read the concentration in µg Cd/mL corresponding to the total absorbance from the standard curve. Multiply by 20 to obtain the total amount of cadmium present in the sample.
- (2) Corrections for the blank shall be made for each sample provided that the amount of analyte on every filter is greater than that on each field blank filter.

7. Sensitivity

A standard containing 1 µg Cd/mL should give an absorbance reading of approximately 0.166.

8. Detection Limit

The detection limit was found to be 0.01 µg Cd/mL or better.

9. Recovery Study

Amount of Cd added to sample (µg)	Amount of Cd recovered (µg)	% Recovery	No. of samples	% Relative standard deviation
7.0	6.9	99.0	9	5.4
14.0	14.0	100.0	9	4.3
21.0	20.8	99.4	9	4.6

10. Precision

Standard solution being measured (µg Cd/mL)	% Relative standard deviation (n = 10)
0.01	21
0.05	9.5
0.10	4.6
0.20	0.3
0.40	0.7
0.60	0.3
0.80	0.3
1.00	0.5
2.00	0.3

Notes: The data listed in sections 7 to 10 were obtained on a Perkin-Elmer Model 603 AAS using a hollow cathode lamp and a deuterium arc background.

 The spectrophotometer was programmed to read directly in concentration.

 The equipment listed above is specified for clarification purposes only and should not be taken as an endorsement by the Ministry.

 An inductively coupled plasma atomic emission spectrometer (ICP-AES) may be used in place of the atomic absorption spectrometer with minor adjustments in the preparation steps where appropriate.

SAMPLING AND ANALYTICAL PROCEDURES USED BY THE MINISTRY WILL BE REVIEWED PERIODICALLY AND, IF NECESSARY, REVISED.

CODE FOR MEDICAL SURVEILLANCE OF CADMIUM EXPOSED WORKERS

MINISTRY OF LABOUR
OCCUPATIONAL HEALTH AND SAFETY DIVISION

August 29, 1985

MEDICAL SURVEILLANCE PROGRAM

1. Purpose

The objective of a medical surveillance program is to protect the health of workers by:

- (a) identifying workers with conditions which may be aggravated by exposure to cadmium and establishing a baseline measure for determining changes in health;
- (b) evaluating the effects of cadmium exposure on workers;
- (c) enabling remedial action to be taken when necessary; and
- (d) providing health education.

2. Program

The medical surveillance program shall consist of the following:

- (a) pre-placement examinations;
- (b) periodic medical examinations;
- (c) clinical tests;
- (d) health education; and
- (e) record keeping.

3. Medical Examinations

The examination shall include the following:

(1) History: The initial medical and occupational history shall include enquiry for previous exposure to cadmium (both occupational and non-occupational), personal habits (diet, smoking and hygiene), and history of past or present respiratory, hepatobiliary, hematological, skeletal, cardiovascular, olfactory, prostatic and renal disorders.

At the periodic examination the history shall be updated to include:

- (a) history of frequency and duration of exposure to cadmium since previous examination; and
- (b) enquiry for signs and symptoms that may be an indication of cadmium intoxication: e.g.,

- acute
 - irritation and dryness of the nose and throat
 - headache, fatigue and dizziness
 - nausea, vomiting, abdominal cramps and diarrhea
 - cough, shortness of breath, chest pain, wheezing, and hemoptysis
 - shaking, chills and myalgia
 - pulmonary edema

- chronic
 - rhinitis, anosmia, ulcerations of nasal septum
 - yellowing of teeth
 - anemia
 - chronic obstructive lung disease
 - liver and kidney damage
 - osteomalacia and bone disease

(2) General Physical Examination: Particular attention shall be directed to those systems which may be affected by cadmium. Personal hygiene shall be noted. The examining physician shall determine the frequency of the periodic examination, from the clinical test results and worker history.

4. Clinical Tests

Clinical tests aid in the assessment of a worker's fitness for exposure to cadmium.

(1) Cadmium Absorption Tests: Urinary cadmium reflects body burden rather than recent exposure so it is appropriate for use in periodic monitoring. The blood level of cadmium reflects occupational exposure during the previous 2-3 months so is of limited value in assessing total body burden, but is useful to identify increased cadmium absorption in advance of elevated urine levels.

The frequency of periodic urinary and blood cadmium tests will depend on the extent of the hazard, the nature of the cadmium exposure and the worker's previous test results. The examining physician shall decide which is appropriate and the frequency of testing.

(2) X-rays: A chest x-ray may be requested by the examining physician if indicated by the history.

(3) Pulmonary Function Tests: Pulmonary function tests may be undertaken. They should include FVC, FEV₁, FEF 25-75% corrected to body temperature and pressure (BTPS), or other equivalent flow rate tests. The instruments used shall be calibrated to currently applied standards as published in the "Snowbird Workshop on Standardization of Spirometry", American Review of Respiratory Disease, 119, 831-838, 1979. The pulmonary function tests should preferably be undertaken on the first day of the employee's work week, following 36 hours without exposure to cadmium.

(4) Action Levels: An assessment of fitness for work shall be based on the physical examination in conjunction with the clinical test results. A cadmium level of 10 µmol/mol creatinine (10 µg/g) in urine or 0.10 µmol/L in blood is a level of concern at which there shall be a review of smoking habits, occupational hygiene, and work practices.

If the urinary cadmium level is above 10 µmol/mol creatinine (10 µg/g) the test should be repeated immediately together with a determination of total protein and B₂ - microglobulin in urine. If the result is confirmed and/or the B₂ - microglobulin is greater than 400 µg/g creatinine the worker shall be referred for further investigation of kidney function and clinical assessment.

If symptoms or signs of cadmium intoxication are present, the worker shall be removed from cadmium exposure regardless of the clinical test results. A determination by the examining physician shall be made as to whether the worker is fit with limitations, or unfit and action taken in accordance with section 16 of the Cadmium Regulation. Subsequently, a decision shall be made by the examining physician as to when the worker may return.

(5) Sample Collection: To obtain comparable samples the clinical specimen should normally be collected at the end of the work week and prior to the beginning of the shift. Urine - collect 50 mL in a cadmium free plastic container with screw cap (no liner). Add six drops of glacial acetic acid to the specimen immediately after collection.

5. Health Education

All workers shall be made aware of the health hazards from cadmium and their examination results shall be discussed. Workers should be advised of the hazards associated with smoking as it adds to the cadmium intake.

6. Medical History and Examination Records

Under the provisions of the Cadmium Regulation, the examining physician in charge of the medical surveillance program shall maintain health records for each worker examined. Such records should include:

- name in full of worker;
- maiden surname of mother;
- date of birth;
- sex;
- Social Insurance Number;
- occupations or job titles;
- date occupations or jobs commenced;
- date occupations or jobs ended;
- the kinds of operations or processes in which the worker was involved;
- concentrations of airborne cadmium to which the worker is exposed;
- use of respiratory equipment;
- date of visits to physician's office;
- medical examination reports;
- health assessments;
- results of clinical tests;
- copies of referral letter to a hospital or physician;

- copies of Forms 7 and 8 to the Workers' Compensation Board if completed;
- all relevant correspondence concerning health, and any information concerning the actions taken in response to abnormal clinical tests.

A worker's health records shall be kept in a secure place by the examining physician for,

- (a) a period of forty years from the time such records were first made, or
- (b) a period of twenty years from the time the last of such records were made, whichever is the longer. Where the examining physician or his successor is no longer able or willing to keep the records, the records are to be forwarded to the Chief Physician of the Occupational Health Medical Service of the Ministry of Labour, who will keep them in a secure place.

Occupational Health and Safety Act

September 21, 1985

MINISTRY OF LABOUR

NOTICE OF PROPOSED REGULATION

SILICA - CONSTRUCTION PROJECTS

AND AGGREGATE PRODUCTION

Notice is hereby given of the following proposed regulation relating to the designation of Silica - Construction Projects and Aggregate Production under section 22(a) of the Occupational Health and Safety Act, R.S.O. 1980, c.321 (the Act).

The government is committed to an open and consultative process for the development of designated substance regulations on the basis that this is more likely to result in quality regulations which are more understandable and acceptable to the affected parties. In order to ensure the most expeditious development of this regulation, dates have been specified in the next paragraph when certain steps in the process are expected to take place. These dates will be adhered to.

All comments that are received in response to this notice will be analyzed and any proposed amendments arising from these comments will be presented at a public meeting to take place not later than February, 1986 for review and further comment. The comments will be analyzed and the regulation may be further revised. It is intended that the regulation will be transmitted to the Advisory Council on Occupational Health and Occupational Safety by May, 1986.

The Ministry is particularly interested in receiving comments on the control of silica exposure of workers engaged in the production of aggregate. Is the most feasible control method to have the operator work inside a controlled-environment, noise-suppressed enclosure? Are there other feasible and effective approaches to the reduction of worker exposure to silica by means of engineering controls, such as:

1. dust collection devices including cyclones, baghouses and electrostatic precipitators; and
2. water sprays including "sonic suppression" systems (also known as "dry fog")?

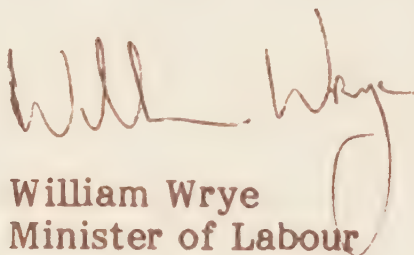

Background information is available for review during business hours in the Ministry of Labour library at 400 University Avenue, 10th Floor, Toronto, Ontario, and district offices of the Ministry. If these hours are not convenient, please contact Mr. John Wilson at the number below.

Comments on the proposed regulation or any particular sections therein must be submitted by November 20, 1985 to:

Designated Substances Project
Program Development Unit
Ministry of Labour, 9th Floor
400 University Avenue
Toronto, Ontario
M7A 1T7

Comments received will be made available for public examination after the close of the public comment period.

For further information contact Mr. John Wilson, Toronto (416) 965-8710.

CODE FOR THE DETERMINATION OF
CRYSTALLINE SILICA IN BULK SAMPLES

Ministry of Labour
Occupational Health and Safety Division
September 12, 1985

CODE FOR THE DETERMINATION OF CRYSTALLINE SILICA IN BULK SAMPLES

1. Principle of Method

Samples suspected of containing crystalline silica are qualitatively analyzed using x-ray diffractometry and petrographic microscopy to determine whether the major diffraction peaks of the polymorphs of crystalline silica (i.e., quartz, cristobalite, tridymite) are free of interference from other components of the sample.

Samples without such interferences are then quantitatively analyzed for these polymorphs by means of x-ray diffractometry using an internal standard technique.

Samples exhibiting interfering peaks are treated by means of wet chemical techniques, e.g., phosphoric acid digestion, to remove the interfering compounds. The amount of crystalline silica in the sample is determined gravimetrically together with supporting evidence from analyses of the residue using x-ray diffractometry and/or petrographic microscopy.

2. Apparatus

- (1) Zip-lock plastic bags to contain samples.
- (2) Ball mill or mortar and pestle.
- (3) 200 mesh sieve and collecting pan.
- (4) X-ray diffractometer, with a cobalt x-ray source.
- (5) Sample holders for x-ray equipment.
- (6) Petrographic microscope.
- (7) Glass microscope slides.
- (8) Glass cover slips for microscope.
- (9) Balance accurate to ± 1 mg.
- (10) Platinum crucibles - 100 mL and 30 mL.
- (11) Mercury bulb thermometer, accurate to 300°C.
- (12) Bunsen burner.
- (13) Tongs with platinum tips; polytetrafluoroethylene stirring rod.
- (14) Glass Erlenmeyer flask.

- (15) Vacuum filtration assembly, 47 mm diameter.
- (16) 47 mm diameter membrane filters, cellulose ester, 0.45 μ m.
- (17) Muffle furnace.
- (18) Powder Diffraction File from the Joint Committee on Powder Diffraction Standards, Pennsylvania, U.S.A.

3. Standards

- (1) Cristobalite is prepared by heating silica gel, (e.g., Fisher No. S-154) ground to less than 200 mesh and contained in a platinum crucible, at a temperature of 1500°C in a muffle furnace for 48 hours, then removing from the furnace to cool in air to ambient temperature. This is calibrated against reference material with a known concentration of cristobalite using an internal standard technique.
- (2) The quartz reference material should be relatively pure, e.g., Ottawa silica sand, Silex 200, etc. ground to pass through a 200-mesh sieve.

4. Reagents

- (1) Immersion oils such as Cargille oils, with refractive indices ranging from 1.40 to 1.70.
- (2) Alumina (Al_2O_3), reagent grade.
- (3) 85% ortho-phosphoric acid, reagent grade.
- (4) Hydrochloric acid, reagent grade.
- (5) Distilled water.

5. Procedure for Qualitative Analysis

- (1) Approximately 5 to 10 grams of sample are ground by means of a ball mill or mortar and pestle to pass through a 200-mesh sieve.

- (2) The powdered sample is mounted in a sample holder and analyzed using x-ray diffractometry by continuous scanning over a 2-theta range of approximately 5° to 100°.
- (3) The d-spacings of the peaks are calculated and compared to the quartz, cristobalite and tridymite diffraction patterns published by the Joint Committee on Powder Diffraction Standards. The major d-spacings of quartz, cristobalite and tridymite are listed in Table 1. Other minerals or inorganic compounds in the sample which may interfere are identified in a similar manner.
- (4) If the presence of crystalline silica cannot be confirmed by x-ray analysis alone, then portions of the sample are immersed in appropriate immersion oils and examined under the petrographic microscope to confirm the presence of silica using the apparent refractive indices of quartz, cristobalite and tridymite of 1.54, 1.49 and 1.47 respectively. Other minerals and inorganic compounds which may interfere may also be identified using petrographic microscopy.

- (5) The sample is quantitatively analyzed by means of either x-ray diffractometry or phosphoric acid digestion depending on, respectively, the absence or presence of compounds exhibiting x-ray diffraction peaks which overlap the major peaks of the polymorphs of crystalline silica.

Table 1: Major d-spacings and Diffraction Angles of Alpha-quartz, Cristobalite and Tridymite silica phase & PDF number	d-spacing (Å°)	diffraction angle for Co x-rays	relative intensity

alpha-quartz 5-490	3.343	31.04°	100

6. Quantitative Analysis by X-ray Diffractometry

- (1) If there are no interfering minerals or inorganic compounds, x-ray diffraction is used to determine the amount of silica present. Since tridymite rarely occurs in construction materials, it is omitted in the following discussions but the procedure is similar.
- (2) The internal standard, alumina, is mixed thoroughly with the sample using 0.200 gram of Al_2O_3 per gram of sample.
- (3) About 1 gram of the mixture is mounted in the sample holder.
- (4) The 2-theta ranges, 23.50° to 27.50° , 29.00° to 30.30° and 30.50° to 31.70° are scanned corresponding to the peak positions calculated from the d-spacings of the (101) reflection of cristobalite, the (012) reflection of alumina and the (101) reflection of quartz, respectively. The gross intensity of each peak is determined by integrating the intensities over the corresponding 2-theta range.
- (5) The background intensity of each peak is determined from x-ray intensities at the beginning and the end of each 2-theta range. These two readings are combined to determine the average background intensity.
- (6) The net peak intensities of d(012) alumina, d(101) cristobalite and d(101) quartz are determined by subtracting the appropriate average background intensities from the gross intensities.
- (7) The net peak intensity of the 2-theta range for d(101) cristobalite also may include signal from d(100) quartz which has been found to be about 18% of d(101) quartz. Therefore, the net peak intensity of d(101) cristobalite is adjusted by subtracting 18% of the net peak intensity of d(101) quartz.
- (8) The net peak intensity of the 2-theta range of d(012) alumina also may include signal from d(110) cristobalite which has been found to be about 0.5% of d(101) cristobalite. Therefore, the net peak intensity of d(012) alumina is adjusted by subtracting 0.5% of the net peak intensity of d(101) cristobalite.
- (9) The adjusted net intensities of d(101) cristobalite and d(101) quartz are normalized against the adjusted net peak intensity of d(012) alumina.
- (10) The percentages of cristobalite and quartz are determined by comparing their respective normalized net peak intensities with appropriate calibration curves.
- (11) Calibration:
 - (i) mixtures of quartz and cristobalite standards, ranging from 0 to 99% quartz and from 1% to 70% cristobalite, are prepared. To each mixture, 0.200 gram of alumina per gram of mixture is added;
 - (ii) each mixture is analyzed by x-ray diffractometry for d(101) cristobalite, d(012) alumina and d(101) quartz as described above;
 - (iii) a calibration curve is determined for d(101) cristobalite and for d(101) quartz by means of linear regression analysis of the percentage of cristobalite or quartz by weight, respectively, versus the corresponding peak intensities normalized to the alumina peak.

7. Quantitative Analysis by the Phosphoric Acid Method

- (1) Thirty (30) mL of 85% ortho-phosphoric acid is heated slowly in a 100 mL platinum crucible to 220°C to drive off excess water and obtain an anhydrous mixture.
- (2) The crucible is removed from heat and the sample (about 0.250 g) is added when the acid has cooled to about 100°C.
- (3) After any foaming subsides, the mixture is re-heated and the temperature is maintained, with constant stirring, between 230°C to 240°C for 10 to 15 minutes.
- (4) After cooling for two to three minutes, the mixture is slowly poured into a 500 mL beaker containing 125 mL distilled water.
- (5) The platinum crucible is rinsed with distilled water and the rinse added to the beaker.
- (6) The mixture in the beaker is stirred and filtered, using a vacuum filtration assembly, through a cellulose ester membrane filter with pore size 0.45 µm.
- (7) The residue collected on the filter is washed with hot dilute (10%) HCl to remove all traces of phosphoric acid.
- (8) The residue and filter are placed in a tared 30 mL platinum crucible and ashed in a muffle furnace at 700°C for 1 hour.
- (9) The crucible is cooled in air to room temperature and re-weighed to determine the amount of residue.
- (10) The residue is examined by polarized light microscopy and by x-ray diffractometry to determine the content of crystalline silica. If necessary, corrections for the small residual impurities are made.

8. Calculations

(1) X-ray diffraction

$$(i) \quad \text{per cent cristobalite} = \frac{\text{slope} \times \frac{I_c}{I_A} + \text{intercept}}{I_A}$$

$$(ii) \quad \text{per cent quartz} = \frac{\text{slope} \times \frac{I_Q}{I_A} + \text{intercept}}{I_A}$$

I_c = adjusted net intensity of peak for d(101) cristobalite

I_A = adjusted net intensity of peak for d(012) alumina

I_Q = adjusted net intensity of peak for d(101) quartz slopes and intercepts are taken from the corresponding calibration curves determined in step 6(11).

(2) Phosphoric Acid per cent crystalline silica =

$$\frac{\text{weight of silica residue} \times 100}{\text{weight of sample}}$$

9. Range and Sensitivity

Both quantitative methods have detection limits of approximately 1% for crystalline silica and both have been confirmed to have linear responses for up to 100% quartz and 62% cristobalite.

10. Precision and Accuracy

(1) X-ray Diffraction:

- (i) the accuracy of x-ray diffractometry depends on the similarity between the standard used and the sample with respect to crystallinity and particle size;

(ii) the standard error of the calibration curve for quartz has been found to average $\pm 1.2\%$ over the quartz concentration range from 1 to 99%;

(iii) the standard error of the calibration curve for cristobalite has been found to average $\pm 1.1\%$ over the cristobalite concentration range from 1 to 62%.

(2) Phosphoric Acid Method:

The recovery after phosphoric acid digestion depends on the size of the particles, the minerals present in the sample and the presence of inclusions within the particles of crystalline silica. The results below were obtained using particles of crystalline silica having diameters up to 74 μm :

(i) the recovery of quartz standard treated with phosphoric acid has been found to be about 93% $\pm 2\%$;

(ii) the recovery of quartz standard in mixtures of quartz and feldspar treated with phosphoric acid has been found to be 90% $\pm 10\%$;

(iii) the recovery of cristobalite standard treated with phosphoric acid has been found to be 80% $\pm 6\%$.

11. Interferences

(1) Sulphide minerals, such as pyrite, are not directly attacked by phosphoric acid but must be treated initially with aqua regia.

(2) Organic compounds, such as carbon, oils and vegetation, are removed by heating in a muffle furnace at 800°C.

(3) Samples containing large amounts of carbonates may be pre-treated using dilute hydrochloric acid to improve the detection limit and accuracy of the determination of crystalline silica.

NOTE: If an x-ray source other than cobalt is used, then adjustments in the scanning angles are necessary.

SAMPLING AND ANALYTICAL PROCEDURES USED BY THE MINISTRY OF LABOUR WILL BE REVIEWED PERIODICALLY AND, IF NECESSARY, REVISED.

Made—August 29th, 1985.

Approved—August 29th, 1985.

ORDER MADE UNDER THE

EXEMPTION—MINISTRY OF GOVERNMENT
SERVICES—MGS-66

Having received a request from the Ministry of

The activity of acquiring land, other than by expropriation, in the southern part of the block on the north side of Armoury Street between Center Avenue and Chestnut Street in the City of Toronto, for a proposed courthouse complex, be exempt from the application of the Act pursuant to

Having been advised that if the undertaking is subject to the application of the Act, the following injury, damage or interference with the persons and property
indicated will occur:

- A. The Ministry of the Attorney General will be interfered with because they require a site upon which to develop a courthouse complex to overcome the existing inadequacies in courthouse facilities.
- B. The public will be interfered with and damaged in that the level of service available and the access to that service is restricted by the existing inadequate accommodations.

Having weighed such injury, damage or interference against the betterment of the people of the whole ing is exempt from the application of the Act for the following reason:

- A. The Minister of Government Services has assured me that the undertaking will not
